

AMERICAN CATHOLICS HONORED BY POPE PIUS TODAY

To Probe Sinclair Donation to Dem. Fund

WALSH BLOCKS MOVE TO CALL PARTY'S TREAS.

Other Members Want Data on $75,000 Oil Man Gave Democrats

BULLETIN.
By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, March 24.—Harry F. Sinclair was formally cited to the senate today for contempt for his refusal to submit to further questioning by the oil committee.

Senator Walsh recommended that the case be certified to the District of Columbia courts for grand jury proceedings.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, March 24.—Carmi A. Thompson of Cleveland, manager of President Coolidge's campaign in Ohio, was the first witness today in the oil inquiry.

The committee turned again to stories of an "oil deal" at the Chicago convention which nominated Harding. Preparations were completed to leave to the courts the refusal of H. F. Sinclair to testify.

Before questioning Thompson, there was a brief excursion into the matter of Sinclair's contribution to the republican national committee to help make up the deficit resulting from the 1920 campaign.

Senator Spencer, republican, Missouri, said a subpoena was out for Fred W. Upham, republican national treasurer.

To Democratic Fund.

"I ask that we subpoena the chairman and secretary of the democratic national committee," said Senator Spencer. "Mr. Doherty testified he gave $75,000 to the democratic national committee while its records show as published, only $8,000.

"We ought to get both sides of these matters," Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, suggested that the republican funds had been investigated only so far as they were involved in the oil leases.

Senator Walsh suggested the committee defer a decision and began the questioning of Thompson. The witness said he did not hear Jake Hammon, oil operator and republican national committeeman for Oklahoma, "make a proposition of any kind for the delivery of the Oklahoma delegation."

Reading from a prepared statement, Thompson said:

"I have been called to tell about a statement which Tiffen Gilmore (deputy secretary of state of Ohio) testified before you that I was alleged to have made to him concerning political deals with the 1920 republican national convention.

"Mr. Gilmore said that the conversation alleged to have had with me, was upon a Pennsylvania railroad train leaving Chicago about 8 p. m., Sunday after the convention, for Washington.

Told of His Journey.
"I did not go to Washington from the convention. I took the New York Central train know as the Twentieth Century Limited on Sunday, direct to Cleveland.

"While on the train I met Mr. C. B. Stabley and wife and John Price and wife, all of Cleveland. I engaged in conversation with them most of the time. When I was not with them I was visiting with a prominent steel manufacturer who discussed with me the outlook for business.

"I do not recall seeing Mr. Gilmore on the train and I did not have a conversation with him upon the subject referred to by him at any place or time.

"I became acquainted with Mr. Jake Hammon after he arrived in Chicago for the convention. I did not hear him make a proposition of any kind to Senator Harding or his associates for the delivery of the Oklahoma delegation.

"As to the oil lands that Mr. Gilmore suggests that I was interested in, perhaps in Southern California, I desire to say that I have never owned or been interested in any real estate outside of Ohio and Minnesota. I have not at any time had a lease on lands, purporting to contain oil. I have never owned a share of oil stock."

Learned of Nomination.
"When did you first learn Mr. Harding would be nominated?" Senator Walsh asked.

"I learned late in the evening prior

Grand Guessing Contest On; How Many Probes to Date?

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, March 24.—The house today authorized two more investigations—one into the Aircraft industry, the other into alleged duplication of government bonds at the bureau of engraving and printing.

Another senate investigation made a bid for public attention today when a special subcommittee of the committee on postoffice and post roads was called together to inquire into alleged land frauds in the Rio Grande valley of Texas with Will H. Hays, former postmaster general, summoned as the star witness of its opening session.

Senator Heflin, democrat, Alabama, charged that R. B. Creager of Brownsville, republican, national committeeman from Texas, was instrumental in having an investigation of the alleged frauds dropped. He will be assisted in his role of "prosecutor" by J. R. Page of Kansas City, Mo., an attorney.

Senator Heflin charged that a group of companies and individuals, members of the Lower Rio Grande Valley Land Men's Association, during a period of years, defrauded a number of persons out of millions of dollars through sale of lands in Cameron and Hidalgo Counties, Texas.

Senator Moses, republican, New Hampshire, is chairman of the subcommittee.

ANDERSON TO START PRISON TERM OF YEAR

Appeal to Supreme Ct. Failed to Save Him From Sing Sing

By Associated Press Leased Wire
New York, March 24.—William H. Anderson, resigned state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New York, recently convicted on a charge of forgery must go to Sing Sing Prison for a term from one to two years. Supreme Court Justice Wagner ruled today in denying the former dry leader's appeal for a certificate of reasonable doubt. Anderson will leave for Sing Sing tomorrow to begin serving his term.

C. P. Williams, of Anderson's counsel, announced he would surrender his client to the sheriff tomorrow.

Justice Wagner held the dry leader had been convicted after a fair trial and that the verdict was in accordance with the evidence. He added that he could see in the trial record the invasion of no substantial right of the defendant.

In Prison Nine Months.

It was estimated that Anderson's incarceration would total approximately nine months if he were to get his full credit for good behavior in prison.

Anderson's conviction last January 29 came after a sensational trial. Anderson on the stand in his own defense told an amazing story under the grilling cross-examination of Assistant District Attorney Pecora detailing the methods by which "John T. King, of Baltimore" had given him $25,000 "for the good of the cause."

The forgery indictment was based on the charge of O. Bertsall, Phillips, engaged by Anderson several years ago as a funds collector for the league that his employer had compelled him to "split" with him all his annual commissions in excess of $10,000.

Volley Ball Team of Two Cities Split Even in Games.

The Dixon Business Men's volleyball team broke even with the Sterling Y Friday evening, the first team winning and the seconds losing their matches. Although both teams were handicapped by the absence of regular players everybody played a rousing game and did as well as though the other stars had been there to twinkle. The second team took to the floor for the first match and before Sterling realized what happened the first game had been won by Dixon. Then something happened, either Sterling woke up and played volleyball or overconfidence spilled the beans for the Dixonites, anyway the next three games went to Sterling.

When the first teams appeared to mix it, Dixon had but three regulars and so had to borrow from the second and had the borrowed players played as well with the seconds as they did with the firsts, Dixon would have made a clean sweep. The last game of this match was by far the most interesting as it went a 14 all and switched back and forth several times before Dixon finally won. It was in these last few minutes that all six Dixon players, and Sterling too for that matter, were playing real volleyball.

The scores for the games were: Seconds—Dixon 15, 7, 9, 7. Sterling—12, 15, 15, 15. Firsts—Dixon—15, 12, 15, 16. Sterling—7, 15, 7, 14.

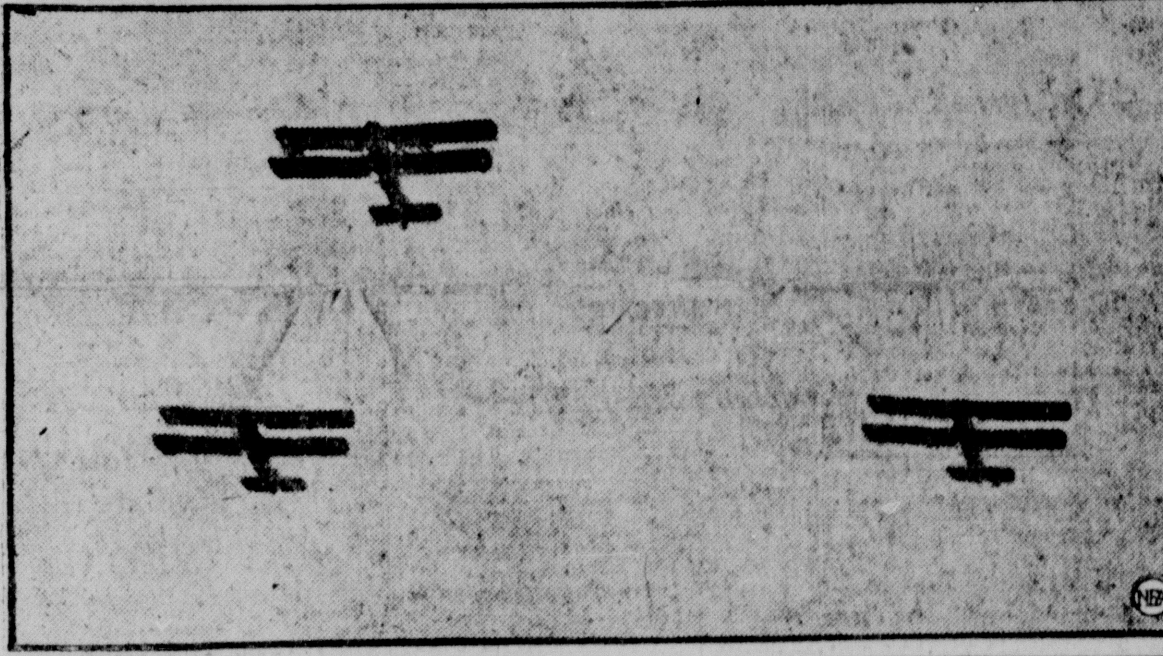

Those who played on the Dixon teams were:

Seconds—DerKinderen, Miller, Hursh, Webb, Forsythe, Larson.

Firsts—Rawls, Schildberg, Lair, DerKinderen, Miller, Murphy.

Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Lehman of Franklin Grove were in Dixon on business Saturday.

FIRST PICTURES OF HOP-OFF

They're off—these round the world flyers of Uncle Sam's! And they won't come back, if they can help it, until they've circled the globe. The upper picture shows Major Frederick L. Martin, flight commander, taking off from Clover Field, Santa Monica, Calif., from whence the planes hopped off on the morning of St. Patrick's Day. In the middle photo, you see the three trail-blazers lining up in V formation as they begin to soar skyward. The lower photo gives a glimpse of a portion of the crowd that gathered to see the flyers off.

Little Change Today in Teams' Standing

Team	W	L	Pct
Dixon's Best	2	0	1.000
Dixon Athletes	2	0	1.000
Dixon Giants	0	1	.000
Dixon Midgets	0	1	.000

There was no change in the relative positions of the teams in the Junior A basketball tournament Saturday, the winners of a week ago still winning and the losers still losing. The Dixon Best team still continued to demonstrate that they are properly named and smote the Midgets on the hip for a 24-9 tilt. In the second game the Giants had too many players on the side lines which did them no good but was fine for the Athletics who took the game 2-0 by default. The games next Saturday should be hot ones as the two leading teams play each other for first place and the two lower gangs play for the bottom position.

ROCK FALLS MAN FINED.

Arthur Maherry of Rock Falls, arrested yesterday for possessing intoxicating liquor, was fined $100 and costs by Justice A. H. Hanneken in police court this morning. Being unable to pay the fine, he was remanded to the county jail.

Wife of Senator to Appear in City with Candidate Essington

Senator Essington, candidate for the republican nomination for Governor, and Mrs. McGill McCormick, wife of the U. S. Senator from this state, who is seeking renomination, will be the speakers at a meeting under the auspices of the Lee County Republican Women's Club at the Dixon Theater at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, to which all voters are invited. Both are good speakers.

Two Auto Wrecks on Sunday; No One Hurt

Lloyd Folk of Polo, driving a new Ford sedan, collided with a Nash car driven by Keith Swartz of Palmyra near the Borden plant last evening. The Folk car was considerably damaged and was taken to a local garage for repairs.

Folk sustained a cut on the nose and the passengers were considerably shaken up, but not seriously injured. The Swartz car was also considerably damaged.

Merle Hamburg of this city, driving a Ford touring car, collided with a street car in the east end of Sterling last evening, the car being badly damaged and this morning it was hauled to a Dixon garage to be repaired.

Three Violators of Traffic Law Fined

Only three violators of the city traffic ordinances were taken Sunday night at the corner of Galena avenue and Seventh street, two being Dixon residents and the third from Walnut.

Justice Albert Hanneken presided at the police court and assessed fines of $3 and costs against Bert Rizner and George Doan of this city and E. A. Splain of Walnut.

WILL BE PUT TO BIG TEST TONIGHT AT MASS MEETING

Reorganization of C. of C. to Be Effected This Week.

The loyalty of the hundred or more men Thursday evening promised aid to the limit of their ability in the reorganization of the Chamber of Commerce, and of the scores of others who have told members that they also would help, will be given an acid test tonight, tomorrow and Wednesday—and especially this evening, when a meeting, open to every citizen who believes in and wants an active and flourishing chamber here, will be held at the city hall at 7:30 o'clock.

This meeting, which will be in charge of Vice President Frank J. Cahill, was unanimously voted Thursday night for the purpose of organizing for the membership drive tomorrow and Wednesday. The faithful workers who have put their shoulders to the wheel to save the Chamber of Commerce cannot do all of the work alone and they are depending entirely on the loyalty of those who have promised to help.

At this evening's meeting teams will be organized to conduct the membership drive tomorrow and Wednesday. Information will be laid out, organization will be completed and full information of the present conditions of the Chamber and the scheme for future work will be given every worker for transmission to the public.

A live Chamber of at least 350 members, with a 60 per cent limitation of expenses for administration, was decided on at Thursday's open meeting. With the usual "Dixon spirit" manifested on the part of the public tomorrow there is no doubt Dixon will regain its position as having "One of the best Chamber of Commerce in the state."

The Pope in his allocation declared America to have attained "primacy" in charity and he wished to remember this by elevation to the sacred purple two prelates whose qualities and the importance of whose sees warranted it.

"In the immense family which God has confided to us," the Pope said, "there are brothers more favored by divine providence who through the father of all come to the assistance of their less fortunate brothers."

"Our heart is exalted toward God and we find pleasure in expressing to them a fervent declaration of our gratitude."

"We feel that something would be wanting in this expression of gratitude if special mention were not made of the part the United States took and maintained in this concourse of charity. The Episcopal clergy and the people of the United States responded to our appeal for aid for Russian children with promptness and generosity."

Fight on North Side Results in Riot Call for Police Department

The police received a riot call Saturday evening about 7:30 calling all of the available officers to the north side, where a fight near the corner of Boyd street and Galena avenue, had attracted a crowd which blocked the sidewalk. Upon the arrival of the officers, hooting and hissing started among the spectators, according to the police and Joe Hoover, one of the participants, was taken to the police station. He was arraigned before Justice Hanneken and paid a fine of $3 and costs for disturbing the peace. The second pugilist had taken a hurried leave from the scene, but police stated that he will also be arrested and fined.

The two combatants had an argument Saturday afternoon. Hoover told the police, and agreed to meet at a given time and at the above place to settle it. Some of the spectators, who apparently resented the arrival of the police, went to the city hall to voice their protests, but their visits were brief, it is said.

ELKS MEET TONIGHT.
A regular meeting of Dixon lodge, No. 779, E. P. O. Elks will be held at the club this evening at 8 o'clock.

LITTLE JOE NERVE TONIC CONTAINS A GREAT DEAL OF OIL NOWADAYS

The consistory was participated in by all cardinals resident in Rome. The hall was a mass of color. The violet robes of the cardinals mingled with the purple of the monsignors of the papal household, Swiss guards in their many colored medieval uniforms and bearing halberds, papal gendarmes, officers of the Vatican's armed forces and numerous functionaries in historical garb, added to the picturesque scene. The cardinals were ranged according to rank with Cardinal Vanutelli, their dean, at the head.

The ringing of a bell announced the approach of the Pope who entered amid silence. He was clad in white, his robes standing out in contrast to the colorful array. He walked slowly flanked by a group of Swiss guards and members of the household. Each prostrate knelt as he approached.

When the pontiff took his place on the throne the cardinals paid him homage, each in turn approaching the throne and kissing the papal ring.

Conducted in Secret
At the conclusion the papal master of ceremonies in a low voice announced "extra omnes". All but the Pope and members of the Sacred College began to retire from the hall. When all those who were not to participate in the consistory had withdrawn, the doors were closed and a group of Swiss guards took up their station at the entrance.

The Pope rose from his throne and uttered a short prayer to the Holy Ghost for the guidance of the consistory. He next read his allocation.

The election of the two new cardinals then took place. The pontiff announced their names and then asked the required question.

"Quid quis videtur?" (Has anyone sought to say.)

Each cardinal, beginning with the dean, rose in turn, bowed to the Pope and removed his skull cap as a sign of assent. The pontiff then announced a list of bishops and other nominees

TWO CARDINALS CREATED TODAY AT THE VATICAN

Archbishops Mundelein and Hayes Given Red Hats by Pontiff

Rome, March 24.—(By the Associated Press)—Monsignor Patrick J. Hayes, archbishop of New York and Monsignor G. W. Mundelein, archbishop of Chicago, were made cardinals of the Roman Catholic church at a secret consistory this morning. The ceremony was performed in majestic solemnity amid a setting of colorful splendor.

The two American prelates thus raised to the dignity of princes of the church were not present, but awaited notification of their elevation at their respective temporary places of residence in Rome, in accordance with custom. Cardinal Hayes received the "biglietti" as the notification is called, at the American College and Cardinal Mundelein at the College of Propaganda.

Tribute to America
The Pope in his allocation declared America to have attained "primacy" in charity and he wished to remember this by elevation to the sacred purple two prelates whose qualities and the importance of whose sees warranted it.

"In the immense family which God has confided to us," the Pope said, "there are brothers more favored by divine providence who through the father of all come to the assistance of their less fortunate brothers."

"Our heart is exalted toward God and we find pleasure in expressing to them a fervent declaration of our gratitude."

"We feel that something would be wanting in this expression of gratitude if special mention were not made of the part the United States took and maintained in this concourse of charity. The Episcopal clergy and the people of the United States responded to our appeal for aid for Russian children with promptness and generosity."

"This benevolence continued for a long time.

"Later we intimated that fresh miseries had arisen throughout the world and it was sufficient to enkindle again everywhere fresh ardor to bestow money and material according to the varying possibilities.

"The slight intimation was sufficient to move the hierarchy, clergy and people to push forward, and upward so they are seen to excel over the deeds of charity previously performed."

Picturesque Scene
The consistory was participated in by all cardinals resident in Rome. The hall was a mass of color. SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY SISTER MARY.

(Unless otherwise specified these recipes are planned for four persons.)

Oysters are perhaps as easy to prepare and serve for a Sunday evening supper as any food.

Dill pickles or gherkins, piquant sandwiches, a fruit salad with cheese straws and tea or coffee might well accompany either of these oyster dishes.

Oysters en Brochette.

One quart large oysters, thinly cut bacon strips of toast, slices of lemon.

One quart of oysters equals about 24 pieces of bacon cut the same size as the oysters.

Clean and drain oysters. Alternate an oyster and a piece of bacon on a skewer. Baste each oyster with a little melted butter. Put skewers across a narrow dripping or baking pan and cook in a hot oven or under the flame for fifteen minutes.

As the bacon cooks the oil from it bastes the oysters. Arrange oysters and bacon on narrow strips of toast and garnish with slices of lemon.

Four drippings in the pan over oysters and serve at once. Allow four oysters and four pieces of bacon for each person.

The skewers may be removed or not as the cook prefers. If you have enough skewers for each service it's rather more satisfactory to serve the oysters on them.

Total calories, 1300. Protein, 185;
fat, 814; carbohydrate, 301. Iron,
.0011 gram.

Oysters With Rice.

One-half cup rice, 1 quart boiling water, 1 teaspoon salt, 4 tablespoons butter, 1 pint oysters, 1 cup white sauce, salt, paprika, mustard, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 3 tablespoons grated cheese.

Wash rice through several waters.
Drain and add slowly to rapidly boiling salted water. Boil twenty minutes. Drain and pour boiling water through rice. Drain again. Melt butter in a pan with a tight-fitting cover, add rice and shake over fire.
Cover and let stand in a warm oven until needed.

Clean and drain oysters. Put a layer of rice in a well buttered baking dish, add half the oysters, sprinkle with salt, paprika, a dash of mustard and lemon juice. Pour over half the white sauce.

Cover with another layer of rice, add remaining oysters, seasonings and white sauce and cover with rice.
Sprinkle with grated cheese and bake about forty minutes in a moderate oven.

Total calories, 1270. Protein, 144;
fat, 654; carbohydrate, 472. Iron,
.0018 gram.

The first recipe will serve from four to eight persons, depending on the rest of the meal.

The second recipe will serve four or six persons.

Mrs. Dobyns Spoke to Women Saturday

Mrs. Fletcher Dobyns spoke to about eighty women of the Eastington League in Dixon at the City Hall
Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Dobyns, quite enthused with her subject, and a good talker held the interest of all as she told of Gov.
Len Small's alleged misdeeds. She said many of his cohorts acted as if "Len Small had discovered roads."

Now good roads are no discovery—when Essington is governor we will have as many roads, and honestly built roads, as we have now.

Mrs. Dobyns lauded Senator Essington, told of his record as mayor of Streator and of his two terms in the state senate where he has been one of the leaders in the campaign against Governor Small.

Wednesday Senator Essington and Mrs. McCormick will be in Dixon to give addresses.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS—

Hanging Brooms.

Hang up your brooms, when they are not in use, by strings tied through the handles or by hooks that attach to nails on the wall.

Good Macaroni.

Good macaroni is yellowish in color and has a rough texture. When broken

it does not split and in boiling it swells to double its bulk.

Should Be Dry.

Food that is to be fried should be as dry as possible and not very cold.

Vegetables.

When cooking vegetables, use only as much water as is necessary to cover the vegetable. For small cut-up vegetables, that can be stirred, use just enough to keep them from burning, adding more as this cooks away.

Coarse-Grained.

If your cake is coarse-grained it is because it was not beaten sufficiently,

or was baked in too slow an oven.

Dry in Sun.

Rinse scrubbing brushes and dry them in the sun with bristles up.

Fruit Sauce.

A very good fruit sauce for puddings or gelatin is made by thickening the syrup from canned fruit with cornstarch.

Good Tea.

To make good tea, have the teapot hot and the water boiling at the moment the tea is made. Do not allow it to steep more than five minutes.

Wishbone.

If only half a turkey is to be used for the first day do not attempt to take out the wishbone.

WIDE CAPE IS NOVEL

The use of the wide cape, on the thin summer frock, is novel indeed, and charming, too, as you can easily

see. Embroidery in pink is combined with flax to trim this lingerie frock, which is of the finest white batiste.

GRADE PARENT-TEACHER ASSN.

TO MEET—

The Grade Parent-Teacher Association will meet Thursday at 4 o'- clock in the Central school at the gymnasium of the high school. Miss Haynes will tell of her work as school nurse, and the Brownies and Girl Scouts will demonstrate some of their work.

WHY HE FIGHTS GOOD ROADS.

Senator McKinley has come from Washington to join in the fight against Governor Small.

In a speech at Charleston, Ill., he made a particular attack on Governor Small's hard roads program.

Automobile highways are now the chief competitors of interurban railroads, in Illinois as well as elsewhere. So Senator McKinley is qualified to speak as an expert on state built roads. For he is President of the Illinois Traction Company, which operates 625 miles of interurban lines and 270 miles of city street car lines. An official statement of the company says:

This system includes a highly developed electrically operated railway serving all the larger cities of central Illinois. It extends from St. Louis, across the richest mining and agricultural part of Illinois, to Danville; to Peoria, the second city of the State, through Bloomington, Decatur, Urbana, and Champaign, the various lines centering in Springfield, the State capital. In addition to the extensive interurban routes, street car lines are operated in Danville, Urbana, Champaign, Decatur, Bloomington, Peoria, Granite City, Madison, Venice, Jacksonville, Cairo, Quincy and Galesburg.

The Illinois Traction System is an important factor in the freight transportation sphere of central Illinois and St. Louis territory. The population served by the interurban railroads is 1,232,814.

In other states competition with passenger automobiles and trucks has cut deeply into the revenues of interurban railroads.

It therefore should not surprise the voters of this State that the President of the Illinois Traction System should vigorously oppose the extension of hard roads, which offer it such serious competition. From his viewpoint such opposition is good business, even though it may prove bad politics.—Chicago Herald and Examiner.

NIGHT-CAP.

A night-cap is the best thing for avoiding colds and rheumatism. So claims Sir James Cantlie, celebrated authority on health. His name is most appropriate.

Thirsty readers will be disappointed to learn that the night-cap he refers to is, not a whiskey toddy, but a flannel cap for the head. Once these were used by nearly everybody. Old things always return, if you just give them enough time. History is a revolving wheel.

SIAMESE-TWINS?

Voters, more than ever before, are wondering how much real difference there is between the two leading political parties.

Lenin, of Russia, once commented that the effect of a two-party system of government is chiefly that one party works while the other rests.

RAPID.

To make a drinking glass has required from four to seven hours. Now it's done in 11 minutes, by a new machine at the Libbey plant in Toledo. One machine makes 1,200,000 tumblers a week, so strong that one inverted tumbler supports 970 pounds of iron.

The latest wave seems to be gradually subsiding. The nation on the average is more honest.

CRIME SUBSIDES.

Pathetically, Chicago boasts that it had only 270 murders last year, compared with 380 in 1919. Similarly, its burglar dropped from 6108 to 3019, and its robberies from 912 to 1402.

Crime waves follow every big war. The latest wave seems to be gradually subsiding. The nation on the average is more honest.

To Machinery like this takes the place of a lot of human labor. But every one gains, the labor formerly employed is released for making other articles. So, each month, more and more articles come into general use—steadily raising the standard of living.

TALKING MOVIES.

The talking movie, attempted many times, is now perfected and soon will be exhibited to public audiences. So announces Prof. James J. Norris, who credits General Electric Co. with perfection of the machine said to synchronize movie films and spoken words.

Will people prefer movies combined with speech? A peculiar charm of the movies is in their silence.

JAIL DRUNKEN DRIVERS.

Charged with drunkenness, a man in Newark, N. J., is brought before a magistrate. He is sentenced to report periodically at the police station to have his breath smelled, and the first whiff of firewater means a jail term.

Ontario, Canada, jails auto drivers who have the odor of liquor on their breath when halted by a constable.

Henry Ford recently said that the American people can't have liquor back unless ready to give up their autos. The two don't go together. You can imagine the smash-ups if saloons were running wide open again, in view of the millions of cars now in use.

BETWEEN.

Russia announces she has exported one and a half billion pounds of wheat and other cereals, in a year. And the overhead charges of marketing these foodstuffs in other countries ate up three-fifths of the money paid by buyers. Ours is not the only country where the system of distribution is 200 years behind the times.

Russia's total exports in 1923 fiscal year were 105 million dollars, compared with 786 millions in 1913. A long way to go before getting back to normal.

AMERICA SUPREME.

Ford gets ready to make 10,000 cars a day. Already he's turning out over four-fifths that many.

The best equipped auto works in Europe is supposed to be the Fiat plant in Italy. It cannot make more than 200 cars a day.

Young men, in particular, should read this twice. It is typical of the industrial supremacy of America. There are other kinds of supremacy, and in many of them we have room for improvement. Ours, however, is an industrial civilization. Higher art and culture will come later, symptoms of decay.

Detroit gambler protests because he was robbed twice in one week. Such things do interfere with business.

The last rose of last summer faded without notice, but the last nose of this winter will be welcome.

Belgians have seized $200,000 in gold going to Germany. This is enough gold to fill the teeth of many tourists.

Inheritance taxes may be increased, but this will never worry very many of us.

Even though these are ticklish times for the politicians very few of them seem to be tickled.

Few people like work because there are so many other things to do.

In Washington, all gall is divided into two parties.

"Some history's bunk," modifies Ford, who seems to be growing up.

Many are being boiled in oil in the political teapot.

TOM SIMS SAYS

What this country needs most is less things it needs most.

A girl naturally hates to go with a man who wears a stiff collar because it hurts her neck.

Maybe unions boost prices, but there is no robbers' union and it costs a lot to be robbed.

Only three more savings months until the next income tax installment.

When some people try to run things they only run amuck.

Women look better than men, but it takes them longer to do it.

Mayor of a Texas town got fired. If you need some slightly used oaths he may sell cheap.

It will be impossible for spring to wear out her welcome.

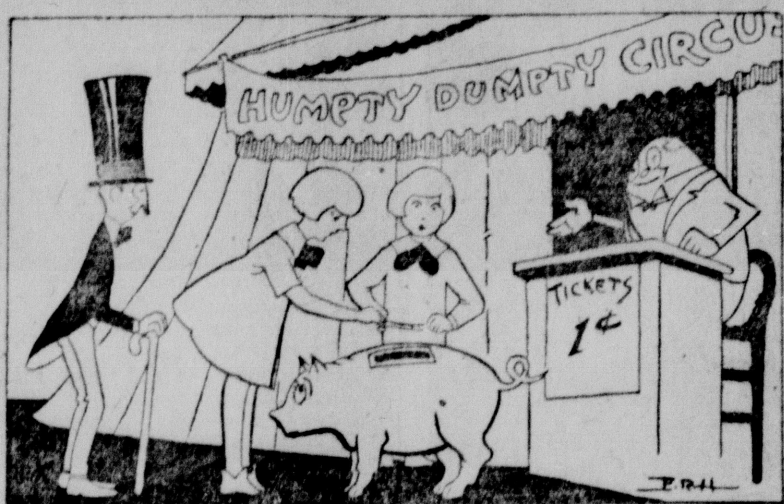

By the time a straw hat feels comfortable it looks so bad you need a new one.

Money talks, but a dollar doesn't say much to the tax collector.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

Olive Roberts Barton

NO. 8—THE HUMPTY-DUMPTY CIRCUS

The China Pig with a slot in his back took the pennies

All the Doofunny people were going to see the Humpty-Dumpty circus and asked the Twins to go along.

So off they went with Mister Fuzz Wuzz at half past 12, to get a good seat.

The China Pig with a slot in his back took the pennies as you passed in, and by the time half of the Doofunny Landers were inside he was so full he couldn't move, and had to ask Sambo, the black boy in the side show to help him.

Sambo had a long red tongue and when you put your penny on it, he rolled his eyes and opened his mouth wide and the penny rolled right down his throat.

Someone whispered that Sambo had been a bank before he went into the sideshow business, but I don't know whether it is true or not.

Anyway he, too, was so stuffed with money that Mister Fuzz Wuzz had to take a screw driver and take off his head and then turn him upside down to let the money roll out.

As for the pig, he couldn't be unscrewed and there he was—not able to move a muscle.

"There is only one way to get any money out of him," said Mister Fuzz Wuzz, "and that's to break him into pieces."

"Oh, don't, please!" begged the China Pig. "I had an uncle once who was broken into pieces, and although he was glued together again, he never was able to eat a full meal afterwards, and never, never, never could be washed."

"I shouldn't think a pig would care about that," laughed Nancy, but seeing the offended look in the pig's eyes

she added hastily, "I'm sure we'll find another way, Mister Pig."

Well, sir, there it was—time for the show to begin and that pig holding up everything.

You'll never guess who came along in the nick of time and helped them out of their trouble! It was the Cut-Out family, Mr. and Mrs. Cut-Out and all the children.

"Why, that's the easiest thing in the world!" declared the Cut-Out gentleman. "I have a thin hand and I can get the pennies out for you."

"But you'll spoil your fine coat!" exclaimed Mister Fuzz Wuzz.

And indeed Mister Cut-Out was quite a dude.

"The pig being china, I don't mind," said he, and putting in his thin hand he drew out a penny. He soon had the poor pig as empty as a drum.

"Thank you, kind sir, you have saved my life," grunted the pig.

"Don't mention it," exclaimed the other. "Nothing at all! I'll save it for you any time."

Of course the Cut-Outs all got in free after that, and a grand circus it was!

The best thing of all was a race two Humpty-Dumpty elephants and the Humpty-Dumpty giraffe.

"Hoop, hoop, hurrah!" cried Nick. "I bet on the elephant."

"I bet on the giraffe!" cried Mr. Fuzz Wuzz, waving his high silk hat.

"Elephant!" yelled some.

"Giraffe!" shouted others.

I'll tell you tomorrow who won.

NEW AMERICAN CARDINALS CREATED TODAY

CARDINAL GEORGE WILLIAM MUNDELEIN

The Most Reverend George William Mundelein, head of the archdiocese of Chicago, one of the most cosmopolitan dioceses in the world, has devoted his life to the upbuilding of humanity by what his parishioners describe as throwing the bonds of love tightly around the younger generation. He has been declared the youngest bishop ever entrusted with an archdiocese of the importance of the Chicago district.

After his installation as Archbishop of Chicago, Feb. 9, 1916, as a successor to Archbishop James E. Quigley, who died in 1915, he set about strengthening the organization of the parochial schools. He unified the methods of teaching and the text books, and by an episcopal order required the branches included in the curriculum to be taught in English in every school.

As a memorial to Archbishop Quigley, he instituted the erection of the Quigley Memorial Seminary, for the education of Roman Catholic candidates for the priesthood.

Through his influence the Knights of Columbus sponsored an institution for reclamation of wayward boys and the Women's Catholic Order of Foresters became sponsors of a movement to provide clubs for working girls. A system of wages was introduced into the House of the Good Shepherd, a correctional institution, which would enable discharged boys and girls to have funds with which to support themselves until they found work.

Problems of education, especially for foreign children, have not been slighted as he has worked diligently to build up a strong force for good by uplifting the younger generation. Unemployment and a big brother movement for wayward boys were each given his attention in their proper turn.

On Prohibition
On the prohibition question the Archbishop once said:

"Prohibition is a question which the people themselves must meet and decide, and the churches should not influence them one way or the other. The American people should be permitted to decide what they want when it is a question of any change in the constitution and when the change is made let everyone abide by it."

He is a great believer in the progressive spirit of Chicago and has declared it to be the greatest field for his work in the country. He is active in Chicago's civic, educational and public affairs, frequently taking a leading hand in the sponsoring of a measure or improvement which he believes to the advantage of Chicago. He is equally as forceful in attacking a project which he thinks contrary to general benefit. During the war he took a prominent part in war work, Red Cross drives and Liberty Loan campaigns.

Soon after his arrival in Chicago in 1916, he was instrumental in the establishment of a home for unemployed under the Mission of the Holy Cross. In the first two years of the existence of the home 76,745 lodgings were furnished; employment was obtained for 1,551; 13,221 meals were furnished free and 82 persons were given free hospital treatment. The average daily attendance at the home was 105.

Under his support the Rosary House, an educational institution for Catholic women, was established and the Dominican Sisters perfected an organization of women who arranged for the new Rosary College.

For "Big Brother" Work

The next great movement he inaugurated was the "Big Brother" work of the Holy Name Society. Under his supervision most of the church societies for men were merged into the Holy Name society with a membership of more than 100,000 members. A representative of the society is stationed in the Boys' Court and when Catholic boys are arraigned and paroled, the court is requested to parole them to a branch of the society, the officers resuming responsibility for the boy's good behavior.

Speaking of this work, the archbishop has said: "I do not believe in punishment of boy offenders. Between the ages of 15 and 19 boys are most susceptible to the influence of older offenders."

During the first year of this work, more than 4000 boys passed through the courts and came under the care of the society, 1701 being paroled to "big brothers."

In the second year of his administration after building up the St. Vincent de Paul Society, he launched the Associated Catholic Charities of Chicago, thereby consolidating and putting on a stable basis the charitable work of Catholics in Chicago. An outgrowth of this organization was the Misericordia Maternity and Infants' hospital.

He encouraged the organization of the Illinois Catholic Historical society in 1918 and was its first honorary president.

One of his greatest educational activities was assisting in the movement to establish a $3,000,000 theological seminary on the shore of Lake Area, near Libertyville, Ill.

Native of New York
Born in the crowded east side of New York City, July 2, 1872, Archbishop Mundelein has advanced steadily through his exceptional ability as administrator, counselor and diplomat. He received his early education in St. Nicholas Parochial School and Old St. LaSalle Institute, where he was graduated in 1897. In 1899 he was graduated from Manhattan College and subsequently went to St. Vincent's Seminary, Beatty, Pa., to take up theological studies.

In September, 1902, he was sent by Bishop Charles E. McDonnell of the diocese of Brooklyn, to the Urban College of Propaganda, in Rome, where he repeated his theological studies and took a special course in the Academy of Sacred Liturgy, obtaining his degree in 1905. At the age of 23, he was ordained to the priesthood by Bishop McDonnell on June 8, 1895 in the chapel of the Sisters of the Holy Cross in Rome. He celebrated his first mass the next day in the Crypt of St. Peter's, assisted by the late Dr. Brophy, a companion in the Propaganda.

Returning to America, he was appointed associate secretary to Bishop McDonnell on Sept. 17 and two years later, in December, 1897, became chancellor of the diocese of Brooklyn, an office which he held for 14 years, until September 1, 1909.

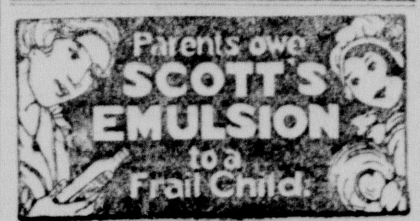

Archbishop Mundelein was appointed Cardinal Vicar of Rome Nov. 14, 1903 and also a censor of the Liturgical Academy. He was made a domestic prelate Nov. 21, 1904 on the application of Bishop McDonnell, elected a member of the Arcadia April 20, 1907, made Doctor of Sacred Theology by the Sacred Congregation of the Propaganda in June, 1908 and June 30 of the following year was named titular bishop of Loryma and auxiliary bishop of Brooklyn.

He was consecrated bishop Sept. 21, 1909, at St. James pro-cathedral, in Brooklyn, and took active part in both church and public affairs. He was especially interested in charity movements and the welfare of boys and young men. He was a firm believer in the power of the press and was president of the publishing company which issued one of the leading Roman Catholic weeklies of the east.

The ceremony of the solemn reception and enthronement of Archbishop Mundelein was celebrated in Holy Name Cathedral, Chicago. The pallium was conferred by Mgr. John Bonzano, apostolic delegate from Rome in the most elaborate Catholic ceremonies ever conducted in Chicago. They were attended by six archbishops, 23 bishops and more than 800 priests.

CARDINAL PATRICK J. HAYES

The multiplicity of duties involved in looking after the religious welfare of the most populous archdiocese in the world and directing the business administration of it, ordinarily would be sufficient to tax the capacity of the ablest of men, but Archbishop Hayes of New York, in addition to those duties, has found it possible to perform other important civic, religious and charitable works which have made him one of the outstanding prelates of the Roman Catholic church.

During the five years he has been head of the New York archdiocese his work has constantly attracted the attention of the Vatican and on several occasions he has been commended by the present pontiff, Pope Pius XI, and his predecessor, Pope Benedict XV.

Born in New York.
Serving his entire ecclesiastical career in New York, the city of his birth, Archbishop Hayes was peculiarly fitted to assume the responsibilities of his office, which are, perhaps, more arduous than those of any other see in the world. A review of his life would make it appear that the archbishopric of New York had been his goal from boyhood because, beginning with his early religious training in St. Andrew's parish, City Hall Place, he has gone through every station in the service of his church that led to that goal. He was a curate, parish priest or pastor, secretary to a bishop, chancellor of the diocese, auxiliary bishop and finally archbishop. In all those positions, in addition to his success as the religious leader of his charges, he has shown extraordinary ability as a business administrator and organizer.

If there is one trait of Archbishop Hayes that stands out more than any other it is charity. His work along these lines has been closely followed by Vatican authorities and since the death of Cardinal Gibbons of Baltimore has caused him to be prominent ly mentioned at every papal consistory as a possible candidate for elevation to the College of Cardinals.

Co-ordinates Charities.
While uniformly successful in the administration of the affairs of the archdiocese, what is regarded by many as the greatest work of Archbishop Hayes has been his development and co-ordination of Catholic charities. After working out a plan early in 1920 of federating all the Catholic benevolent institutions in the archdiocese he placed it before the clergy and people and instituted a campaign for their united maintenance. During the last eight months of 1920 he raised for the federal fund the sum of $160,000. In 1921 the amount was $387,000 and in 1922 it was $382,000. The total for the 1923 campaign has not yet been announced, but it will compare favorably with previous years and, it is expected, make the grand total more than $3,500,000 raised since May 1, 1920.

Helped Europeans.
Another form of charity work in which Archbishop Hayes has been active has been in aiding the stricken people of the various countries of Europe. He has never failed to hear the cry of a people in want and by official letter to his clergy has set aside a certain Sunday for special collections and in some instances a special week for the collection of clothing and food. Through the churches of the archdiocese he raised a substantial sum for the relief of the victims of the Japanese earthquake and more recently set aside a week during which he urged his people to contribute clothing for the benefit of the destitute classes of Germany.

Archbishop Hayes has always taken a profound and active interest in the internal troubles of Ireland and while he frequently expressed his favor of the movement to gain freedom for that country he was more concerned about peace for the Irish people. A leader in the Irish cause said of him before the establishment of the Free State: "Whatever Ireland gets will be due in a great measure to the efforts of Archbishop Hayes." After the Free State had been established Archbishop Hayes continued his efforts to bring about peace between the government and the followers of de Valera and when civil war appeared to be imminent he sent a message to Archbishop Byrne of Dublin, which was regarded as a warning to both sides. He said that civil war in Ireland would shock America and would cost Ireland the loss of hosts of sincere friends in America.

During the world war Archbishop Hayes, then auxiliary bishop of New York, served as a member of the National War Council and was appointed by the Pope bishop of the American army at the front, the appointment carrying ecclesiastical jurisdiction over Catholics in the service wherever the American flag was raised. As chaplain general he visited virtually every army camp and naval base in America and was prepared to go to France when the illness and subsequent death of Cardinal Farley made his trip overseas impossible. His other war work included activities in behalf of the various Liberty Loans and in helping raise a fund of $500,000 to aid French Catholic victims of the war. In 1920 he was decorated with the Order of the Crown of Italy for his work in behalf of Italians during the war.

SOUTH DAKOTA IS ON TOES FOR ITS PRIMARY TUESDAY

Opposition Against McAdoo Makes Appearance in State.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
SIOUX FALLS, S. D., March 24.—A political armistice existed today in South Dakota as last until the voters of the state go to the polls tomorrow to vote for their presidential and senatorial preferences in the primary election.

A clean cut issue is admitted by both sides to lie in the republican presidential race, where President Coolidge and Senator Hiram Johnson of California each seeks the support of the state's delegates in the party's national convention at Cleveland.

Newspapers and political observers consider the strength of the factions even.

In the democratic primary, one nominee—W. G. McAdoo seeks the endorsement of the party, but a strong move has been made to send an uncommitted fusion delegation to the national convention and such a delegation would be anti-McAdoo.

This fusion delegation is backed by minority groups of the democratic and farmer-labor parties which also extended their activities to the United States senatorial and state contests.

Convention for Coolidge.
Majority candidates endorsed by the state proposal conventions held last December and minority and independent candidates were permitted to file under the South Dakota law.

President Coolidge is the majority or convention candidate while Senator Johnson has filed as an independent in the republican race. Governor McMaster is the majority candidate for the republican senatorial nomination. Senator Sterling opposes him.

The republican, democratic and farmer-labor parties each have candidates in the majority and minority columns but only the republicans

FINGER PRINTS

There's no one who has never seen the prints upon the wall; the prints that always reach a few high. Created when a tiny tot is learning not to fall, they leave their mark as baby's passing by.

The shades of tiny fingers and the imprints of a hand have doubtless made poor mother often say, "That simply means more work for me; I cannot understand why things around the house should be this way."

On chairs and on the windows, on the bric-a-brac and such, and every place that tiny hands can reach, you'll find the indications of a growing infant's touch—a touch of one who's much too young to teach.

A million landlords rave about these marks, when on the wall, but having never will stop, them being there, for warnings never have effect upon a tot, at all. It's innocent; it doesn't know—or care.

And, later on, these youngsters, who have reached out in their youth and caused their parents worry, care and strife, discover, as they grow up that they've got to keep, in truth, a reaching out to get somewhere in life. (Copyright, 1924, NEA Service, Inc.)

have independent filings. The democratic and farmer-labor minority groups have filed a fusion ticket.

FEW FOLKS HAVE GRAY HAIR NOW

Druggist Says Ladies Are Using Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

BY HAAKON H. HAMMER.

Captain Roald Amundsen's Associate.

Written Expressly for NEA Service and The Telegraph.

Flying 7000 feet over the Arctic last summer I found a temperature of 6 to 42 degrees—above zero, not below it. The winds were light and shifting. Air pockets were an entirely unknown quantity. The atmospheric conditions in general were ideal for flying. So we are hopeful that the weather will favor us on our flight this summer, too.

But it's the ground below us that will give us our chief concern. It was so last year.

My Spitzbergen expedition to Amundsen's support, officially known as the Hammer-Junkers Expedition, went to Spitzbergen last June. We were equipped with one all-metal Junker monoplane, which had a flying radius of 18 hours, and were set to make flights right into the North Pole region to search for Amundsen.

At the outset I had two machines at my disposal. But one was wrecked in the flight from Hamburg to Kristiania. The other plane was placed on board a steamer and transported directly for Spitzbergen, which is about 500 miles further north the northern coast of Alaska, and is far more accessible during the summer months. It is the logical base of operation for a Polar flight. That's why we are using it this year.

Before reaching our base we learned by wireless that Amundsen had been forced to abandon his flight on account of an accident to his plane. We were not required to fly for relief purposes. But we decided to proceed and make flights toward the north in order to investigate conditions for a later North Pole flight.

Take Off Trusting to Luck.

We established our base at Green Harbor, Spitzbergen, at about 78 degrees north. There we found an excellent natural harbor where we were able to haul the plane up on the beach and leave it there in all kinds of weather, for it was of aluminum construction. This type of all-metal plane is the only one suitable for Arctic flying, as it would be well nigh impossible to carry along hangars required for wood-and-stuff machines.

Our plane was equipped with metal pontoons; but we had with us both wheels and skis in case we should find it desirable to change our landing gear. We soon discovered, however, that wheels were useless, as it was impossible to find sufficient bare ground on which to take off. The only part of the islands which were not snow-covered were mountain peaks.

Skis also were found impracticable, for the snows, though hard on the surface, were too honeycomb underneath to stand the weight and pressure of a plane making a landing. So we had to use pontoons, take off from the water, and trust to luck—for we fully realized that if we were forced to make a landing on ice or snow we would have to remain wherever we came down.

To meet this emergency we always carried personal ski equipment and provisions for 14 days on all flights.

Spitzbergen translated into English means "pointed mountain." Never was a land more appropriately named. Pointed mountain tops reaching up over the snow and clouds were all that met our eyes. Many of the mountains looked like dead craters with sides coming to peaks as sharp as needles.

Old Compass Found Useless.

Once upon a time Spitzbergen is supposed to have been tropical. Its rich coal deposits are proof of this. The land is supposed to have belonged to the group of Japanese islands until volcanic eruptions, back in the ages, let it adrift. But it was difficult to realize this as we gazed down upon the mass of ice and snow from our plane thousands of feet up in the air.

Except for some Arctic birds we saw no signs of animal life. Several years ago both reindeer and polar bears were found on Spitzbergen, but they have all been killed off.

As we traveled over the pack ice we were surprised to see great spans of open water, "leads" or lakes over the ice. Just how rough the ice was, or how deep the water, were unable to determine. But our observations fitted perfectly with Admiral Peary's reports from other parts of the Arctic ice pack that open water may be found over the ice in the summer even up to the 87th degree.

We found great difficulty in navigating as the magnetic compass in these latitudes was useless. So for our trip this year we have devised a new compass.

MONDAY

The Way to Happiness

Read Matt. 5:1-13. Text 5:2-3. And he taught them, saying, Blessed are ye poor in spirit.

"In beginning the Christian life a man commits himself to candid inquiry, in a spirit of self-sacrifice and devotion, regarding the proper expression of the ideals of Jesus in all phases of modern life. God has put the friendly instinct deep down in the soul of man. The desire to get and give help wells up in every little child so ready to say, 'let me help!' It is in every mother's heart."

MEDITATION: The characteristics of the Christian which Jesus outlined in the beatitudes are alluring beacons to a higher life. The consciousness of an unsatisfied desire is one of the surest indications that somewhere in God's universe that desire will be satisfied if we only persevere. Until the human soul enters into the blessed peace of the Lord it is restless and ill at ease, for in him only are we at home.

PERSONAL QUESTION: What does it mean for me to be poor in spirit?

PRAYER: Our Father God, we pray that thou mayest control our thoughts and our wills this day. Save us from taking the first enticing path unless it leads to fields of greater service. May we not look for ease, but let holy impulses guide us into ways of righteousness, through Christ, Amen.

IF SKIN BREAKS OUT AND ITCHES APPLY SULPHUR

Just the moment you apply Mentho-Sulphur to an itching, burning or broken out skin, the itching stops and healing begins, says a noted skin specialist. This sulphur preparation, made into a pleasant cold cream, gives such a quick relief, even to fiery eczema, that nothing has ever been found to take its place.

Because of its germ-destroying properties, it quickly subdues the itching, cools the irritation and heals the eczema right up, leaving a clear, smooth skin in place of ugly eruptions, rash, pimples or roughness.

You do not have to wait for improvement. It quickly shows. You can get a little jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur at any drug store.

When Madame appears, she kisses Sallie and tells her that she is injured in a train wreck and that Cousin Wheeler saved her.

Madame Copeland tells Sallie she is being cared for by Dr. Qualters. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

While she stood there with the warm sunshine streaming in upon her face and turning her hair to spun gold a man cantered slowly along the dirt road beyond the wall on a beautiful bay horse and he gazed admiringly at both mount and rider. She realized that the latter was staring fixedly up in her direction, apparently straight at her window!

She dropped the curtain but through its folds her eyes followed him and just before he disappeared into a clump of trees he turned in his saddle and lifted one arm. He didn't exactly wave but it looked like a sort of signal nevertheless.

Sallie turned just as the door opened and Theresa hurried in. "Why are you out of bed?" she demanded sharply. The change from the deference of her former manner was unmistakable and Sallie lifted her eyebrows.

"What's the idea?" she retorted. "I guess I can look out the window if I want to, Theresa."

The mention of her name brought a quick flush to the woman's sallow cheek.

"But mademoiselle must not rise until the doctor has come!" Her tone was respectful enough now, yet insistent. "You see, Miss Alva! It was not wise!"

For Sallie's treacherous knees had begun to give way beneath her and she was forced to reach out to a chair-back for support. She permitted Theresa to lead her to bed and adjust the covers about her, then closed her eyes wearily, indifferent to the maid's departure.

That sudden flash of authority had revealed to her the difficulties of her present predicament and she couldn't afford to waste any time worrying about it. Folks didn't go around adopting strange girls out of railroad wrecks for nothing and the fact that Mrs. Copeland was so undeniably the real thing showed that she must be pretty desperate herself to take such a risk.

For some reason Sallie was to be pained off on somebody as her stepdaughter Alva; that was clear but it was equally certain she couldn't get away with it, not unless Sallie fell in with the scheme and there was a swell chance of that!

All she wanted now was to get home to Ma Brennan and her job at the Fair Deal. Here she was in New York where she didn't know a soul, without clothes or money and in the hands of two women who were evidently determined to keep her for awhile at least, but meantime Ma Brennan would be crazy with worry, thinking likely that she'd run away on account of that quarrel with Mike, and she'd lose her job if she didn't show up mighty quick.

The door opened again and a mousey little woman entered with a rattle of her stiffly starched white uniform and a professional smile on her lips. She bore a great bunch of pink roses and advanced to the bed.

"My patient is much better this morning, I hear!" Her voice was brisk but soothing and she did not stare as searching as the other women had done. "These came for you just now and I knew you would want to see them."

She laid the huge sheaf of roses on the coverlet and Sallie glanced in at them as they until she saw that a card was poked in among them. Drawing it out she read the engraved name: "Mr. Wheeler Sloan," with "Forefathers a Club" written across the top in a queer, slanting, uneven hand: "Just heard the glad news. Waiting all impatient to see you."

Cousin Wheeler might wait indefinitely, as far as Sallie was concerned. She laid the card on the table beside her and watched the nurse as the latter moved about the room and into the tiled bath beyond with the quiet efficiency of a person who knew her business.

The nurse emerged from the bathroom shaking a tiny thermometer and approached the bed once more.

"The doctor will be here soon," she announced. "I must take your temperature now, Miss Copeland."

"Listen!" Sallie caught her wrist

CHAPTER III
 The Newspaper Fragment

WHEN Sallie awoke once more the shadows of late afternoon were creeping in at the window and the throbbing in her head had ceased. Reaching up she felt that the bandages had been removed and two strips of plaster were crossed over her hair.

She must first find out why Mrs. Copeland was trying to put over this bluff.

There must be a lot of servants in such a big house and they couldn't all be working in with Mrs. Copeland, for if she was trying to get away with anything crooked she wouldn't take a chance on blackmail later. Sallie had listened to enough of Mike's talk about criminal cases to realize that to say nothing of Ma Brennan's pet detective stories.

Sooner or later she would discover somebody in that household who'd help her but until then it was up to her to just sit tight. For the first time she found herself wondering about the real Alva Copeland. If there was any such girl and she had actually been in that wreck, what had become of her?

At this point her cogitations were interrupted by the entrance of Miss Tidmarsh bearing a tray and Sallie became aware all at once that she was healthy hungry. She eyed the silver covers eagerly and Miss Tidmarsh smiled.

"You have had a nice little sleep, Miss Copeland," she remarked.

"I guess I have," Sallie agreed. "I'm awful hungry now, though; I hope you've brought something besides soup."

"A lovely squash, and some jelly and toast." She removed the covers and the girl eyed the repast before her with some disappointment. That measly little frizzled-up bird! What she would give for one of Ma Brennan's boiled dinners right now!

and pulled her down beside her. "You're Miss Tidmarsh, ain't you? How long have you been taking care of me?"

"For three days, my dear," Miss Tidmarsh disengaged one hand, smiling again. "You have made a splendid recovery!"

"Then you know I'm not cuckoo, don't you? I mean, that there's nothing the matter with my head now even if I was knocked silly?"

"Of course not! It was only natural that you should be slightly delirious but you are perfectly rational this morning, Miss Copeland."

"I'm not 'Miss Copeland'!" Sallie burst out desperately. "You've got to listen and try to understand! I was mixed up in that train wreck and rescued by mistake for somebody else. I don't know why Mrs. Copeland brought me here, I never saw her or that Theresa before in my life and I've got to go home!"

"I understand," Miss Tidmarsh spoke soothingly and did not appear to be surprised at the revelation. "That will all be arranged for you, but you must let me take your temperature before you say any more for I must mark it on your chart and if it has risen I am afraid the doctor won't let you go."

"Say, listen, sister, you've got me wrong!" Sallie panted in sudden panic. "They're trying to put that over on you the same as me, that I don't know who I am nor what I'm talking about! You've got to help me get away!"

"Yes, yes, I will, but not if you say one word more!" The nurse's cool tones had crisped with authority. "Take the thermometer—that is right, now close your lips, please. Give me your hand."

Her firm fingers closed on Sallie's wrist and the girl lay watching her in mute appeal as she counted the pulse-beats and frowning wrote some figures on a little red leather pad.

"Excuse me. Just a minute, please." She removed the thermometer and went quickly into the bathroom before Sallie could utter a word, but a knock sounded almost immediately upon the outer door leading to the hall and she reappeared to usher in a slim, dapper, smooth-shaven man in the late forties, who with a whispered word and a nod handed her a small bag, and then advanced to the bed rubbing his shaggy hands together in a way that made Sallie long to throw something at him.

"Good morning, my dear! Ah, I see that we are coming around nicely now! The chart, please, Miss Tidmarsh. Ha, h'm, temperature—! I fear there has been too much excitement, we must keep more quiet!"

"Who are you?" demanded Sallie abruptly.

"Doctor Qualters, your physician. Take, please, my dear. Now a little water, please, Miss Tidmarsh." He smiled, showing a row of shining teeth.

Sallie obediently swallowed the tablets and took a sip of the water, trying to control herself.

"Doctor," she essayed a faint smile, "I suppose you know who I am?"

"Certainly. You are Alva Copeland." He took her hand and stroked it, and Sallie gritted her teeth but forced herself to go on.

"Have you ever seen me before? Before this accident, I mean?"

"Of course! You haven't forgotten?" Dr. Qualters laughed indulgently. "I attended you when you first returned to America a month ago and were feeling so badly after that rough passage, don't you remember? But that I had not seen you since you were a little girl."

So he was in on it, too! Sallie's smile became a trifle sly as she leaned back among her pillows. There was only one course for her to take now; sit pretty and let things ride.

LETTER FROM LESLIE PRESCOTT TO LESLIE PRESCOTT, CARE OF THE SECRET DRAWER

It doesn't seem possible, little Marjorie, that one's life can completely change in twenty-four hours.

Yesterday, when I wrote you, I think I was the happiest woman on earth, and today I know there is none more miserable.

Jack seemed so pleased and happy to have me home. He had a nice dinner waiting for me, and after we had put the baby to bed he came and sat beside me on the sofa, and putting his arm around me and drawing my head over on his shoulder, he told me how glad he was that I had come back. "I cannot tell you how lonely I have been, dear heart," he said.

Not since the baby came had he been so lovable, and yet all the while there was a kind of something between us. Finally we began to talk of Paula Perier.

"I'm sure you know the gossip that is going about the town, Leslie."

"I don't know any gossip," I answered. "I never let people talk gossip to me."

"Are you sure you do not know that every one has said that it was Paula Perier that put little Jack in front of your door?"

"I believe I have heard something like that but I paid no attention to it. I thought it was God."

Jack's arm clasped me tighter and his lips touched my hair lovingly.

"I am sure at that time if it hadn't been for that blessed baby I wouldn't have wanted to live," I said solemnly. "If it really was Paula Perier I shall bless her as long as I am on this earth. I was almost sure the other day when she was here that she was really and truly little Jack's mother, and oh, how sorry I was for her!"

"I do not think I could have been as big as she was if I really were his mother. I could not have gone away without telling my secret. I think I should have made a scene, John, and insisted on taking my baby home with me."

"She is a big woman, dear, and strange as it may seem, I'm going to tell you she is a good woman, even while I confess to you that Paula Perier is the mother of your adopted baby."

"Why do you say 'your' adopted baby, John? Isn't little Jack our adopted baby?"

"No, my dear. He is yours by adoption—but—Leslie, God forgive me, I am his real father."

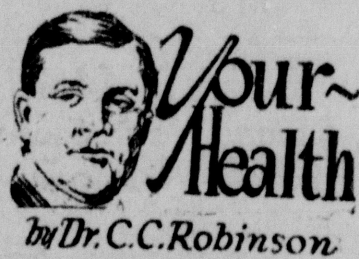

I felt my eyes widen with surprise and horror.

"Don't laugh at me, Jack. I do not like such kind of lies."

"I'm not laughing, dear heart. I am trying to tell you that Paula Perier put little Jack in front of our door because she was almost starving and she had found that no one would consider a young woman with a baby; and she decided that as the child belonged to me and as I was perfectly able to bring it up in comparative luxury I was the logical one to take care of it."

EPIDEMICS

There is evidently much to be said against the carelessness in recognizing the immediately placing quarantine on what are called light cases of many children's diseases.

To properly give the necessary safeguarding to our children is one of the actions which must be taken at once, in the case of scarlet fever, in its so-called light form.

Even in select or first class communities, where living conditions and environment are of the very best, too much care cannot be taken in giving adequate protection to the children.

If school officials and parents, co-operating with physicians and the Board of Health, are strict in this matter, a great step in prevention of epidemic conditions will result.

The greatest danger is in the cases of diphtheria, meningitis and tuberculosis. In these three, infection is due to germs. Others, such as German measles, chicken pox and mumps are not regarded as dangerous to life, but may also cause epidemic conditions.

Epidemics are spread by means of personal contact more than by any other carriers. Do your best to pro-

Gum Chewing Aids the Teeth

You have the authority of doctors and dentists for this statement. Your own experience will prove it, if you will use WRIGLEY'S after every meal.

The following quotations from a recent work on teeth and health are worth remembering:

"Dentists have found that the exercise of gum chewing brings about a better nutrition of the teeth"

"The cleansing action of the gum between the teeth helps to keep them free from the particles which lodge in the crevices and cause decay."

The busy man—or woman either—rarely has time to clean the teeth after eating. Yet they should be cleaned, and

Gasoline Prices

A LATE bulletin issued by the Bureau of Mines points out that 1923 established a new high record in gasoline production in the United States, reaching 7,555,945,143 gallons—an increase over 1922 of 21.83%.

The National Petroleum News prints an estimate that the probable requirements during 1924 will be 8,236,617,000 gallons of gasoline.

Unless the 1924 output of gasoline shall more than equal the high record of 1923, the supply will fall short of the demand by at least 780,617,857 gallons.

It is a well-established fact that crude production has declined sharply, California alone shows a falling off from the 1923 high mark of more than 200,000 barrels a day.

Manifestly only those refiners who can extract the greatest yield of gasoline from a given quantity of crude oil are in position to render a major service under existing circumstances.

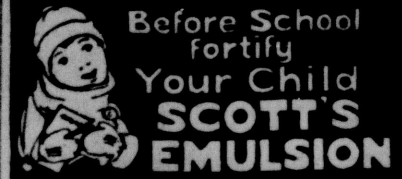

During the past several years processes have been developed in the laboratories of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana), by means of which this Company is able to recover a greater yield of gasoline from a given quantity of crude.

The benefits derived from the operation of these processes accrue directly to the advantage of the motoring public, because the increased yield secured by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) exerts a marked deterrent influence on the price you pay for a gallon of gasoline.
